

White Paper

Mission Statement

$KILLER is a disruptor of the status quo. Step out of the matrix, rewire the system, erase income inequality. When the 99% become the 1%, we've succeeded.

What is a Fat Cat Killer?

Fat Cat Killer is a new cryptocurrency, designed for investors searching for a safe financial instrument to enter the blockchain-driven world of Decentralized Finance (DeFi) – and one that, from top to bottom, employs the industry's best practices.

Founders and experts spent over a decade in the marketplace, creating, trading, living and breathing crypto. Now, these Subject Matter Experts, in the fields of finance, marketing, software development and cyber security have come together to form a Dream Team. With a memorable name, entertaining backstory, real-world utility, a charitable mission, and an achievable roadmap to supercharge its growth, Fat Cat Killer is primed to become the hottest and most trending coin of 2023. The Cat is coming for the leading doggies!

We have developed a plan to drive $KILLER to the top.

TRANSPARENCY

THE DEAL

As founders, we treat ourselves no different than our team and advisors. This means we have the same lockup provisions, the same burn rates, the same everything. In our commitment to transparency, we have locked this into our smart contracts.

THE LOCK

The lock is critical for the stability of every new coin in order to preserve its value. By locking founders, advisors, and the team we show our commitment in maintaining a steady rise in value and a hedge against volatility.

THE BURN

We launch with an initial 900 trillion-coin supply and will execute an unprecedented, rapid burn to reduce total volume to 9 trillion coins. Our 99% burn is the highest of any coin in history, engineered to rapidly increase coin valuation.

$KILLER is an extremely deflationary coin. We have designed our burn system that will reduce the total supply as quickly as possible. Seven percent (7%) of coins sold in every transaction will be burned. This burning begins at launch and continues until we reach our target total supply of 9 trillion coins. This feature is embedded into our smart contracts, and will not be changed.

900 TRILLION COINS to 9 TRILLION COINS

LAUNCH

Ticker symbol is KILLER. Smart contract address is available on our website.

HOW TO BUY

1. DOWNLOAD YOUR WALLET: Download any BEP-20 compatible wallet as a web browser extension or mobile app.
2. SET UP YOUR WALLET: Set up your account, adding the Binance Smart Chain, BEP-20, to your network list.
3. BUY $BNB: Use your favorite exchange to buy and send $BNB and to your wallet address.
4. EXCHANGE $BNB FOR $KILLER: Go to the PancakeSwap Exchange and connect your wallet. Then, at the exchange page, input $KILLER, add your contract address, set slippage to 20%, and swap your $BNB for $KILLER

SECURITY

$KILLER will utilize open source technology to the fullest extent to provide maximum visibility into the project for the community.

CERTIFICATIONS

Three separate security audits like Soken, Solidity Finance, or others are available on our website coinciding with legal opinions on our tokenomics and whitepaper.

CHARITY

Our experiment is simple, we're testing the hypothesis that crypto can give opportunity to those afflicted by income inequality. To do this, we've partnered with Global

Empowerment Mission (G.E.M.), a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization founded in 2011 that has supported 295 missions in 28 countries, all 50 US states, and territories including the Caribbean.

We chose G.E.M. as a third party administrator and auditor of our donation fund for many reasons, one of which is that they have Guidestar's Platinum Seal of Transparency; we believe it is important so that crypto investors can feel confident their donations are held accountable to fulfill their charitable mission(s).

One of our first incubators is in Honduras, in which G.E.M. will work with Humanity and Hope United (humanityandhope.org) to build sustainable homes, provide grand farm irrigation, and new job creation in the unserved remote villages of the country.

Our second incubator is in the island of Puerto Rico, as the 1% own 99% of the island's assets, as is the case with the majority of the global economy. Conversations with our Puerto Rican (PR) contacts are in progress, and Fat Cat Killer, through G.E.M., will choose our charitable institution(s) within the coming weeks. G.E.M. has a strong presence in PR through its robust mission in delivering food, aid, shelter, clean water, and the subsequent rebuilding efforts in the aftermath of Hurricane Maria.

Fat Cat Killers desire to close the gap in income inequality is achieved by creating opportunities for disadvantaged individuals and their respective communities across the globe. With our partners we will help fund the creation of economic opportunity zones, sustainable villages, disaster response, single mothers, youth programs, and providing the tools and education to empower and elevate those less fortunate onto a more level playing field.

SPONSORING & MULTIMEDIA

Fat Cat Killer has been on the forefront of extreme sports by sponsoring multiple events like the Carolina Ski Race and more. $KILLER's Colombian roots gives it access to uses to integrate its own homegrown variety of Artists into its Multimedia brand. For example, Fat Cat Killer made a unique Music Video in Medellin, which is available on its YouTube channel.

More songs from other various artists will be added periodically. Multiple artists from around the world already have embraced the Fat Cat Killer brand, such as legendary Grammy Award winning musician NeYo and TV personality & DJ Blake Horstmann

STAKING/LOTTERY

$KILLER's version of staking is its lottery system where investors can win a variety of coveted prizes. From an iPad to a luxury watch to increasingly luxurious items, nothing is off the table. Investors must lock their tokens for a short period of time to be eligible and winners are chosen randomly via its verified smart contract algorithm.

FAT CAT KILLER'S ORIGIN STORY

A cat and his two brothers were born in Harlem, New York, during a deep winter freeze. This season has been exceptionally cold, but not like today. Because the cat is the smallest of the three kittens, his mother implores his siblings to keep the infant cat warm, using their own bodies. They desperately try to feed the infant what they scavenge, but he isn't able to eat or thrive. On the verge of starvation and freezing to death, the family tucks the kitten away in a small hollow tree trunk while they stand guard at the sealed entrance.

That night, the kitten awakens hearing coyotes outside his hideout, and a fierce battle ensues. The kitten tries to claw its way out to defend his family, but his paws are too small to cut through the protective barricade in time. His family bravely fights off the attack, but at the cost of their own lives and a single dead coyote. After many hours of pawing the snow, the kitten finally emerges to the scene of carnage, and he falls into overwhelming grief.

The kitten, now on the verge of death - too weak to move, starved, and immersed in anger - begins eating from the corpse of the dead coyote. What he doesn't know is that this was no ordinary canine, it is the corporal shell that contained the spirit of a fierce and ancient warrior, Hototo. As he eats, the spirit leaves the coyote, and enters his own body, connecting with the warrior god's spirit. Hototo teaches the kitten to hunt using the ancient and familiar scythe. Soon the kitten has tracked and killed the coyote pack that took away his family. Following Hototo's traditions, the cat feeds on the corpses of those he's killed as a sign of respect for the defeated, becoming fatter and stronger with each slaying.

Determined that no children should be without their parents, the kitten continues to hunt coyotes. As the bones of the coyotes increased, so did the cat's reputation. Seeing the bones of the coyotes, the dogs in the area become frightened for their own lives and refer to him as “Fat Cat Killer”. Fat Cat Killer, or F.C.K. for short, returns to his original shelter, avenged, but still lonely, sad, and without purpose. Exhausted, he falls asleep to awaken a week later when he hears a mouse crawl into the hollow, also seeking shelter. The cat quickly snatches up the mouse, ready for his first meal in many days.

Thinking fast, the clever mouse says, “Why will you kill me? I am not your enemy. Your enemy, those who left you alone without a family, are the coyotes. Your enemy is out there, not here. If we work together, you can keep me warm, and I will bring you joy, which eludes you, and a friend, as you are lonely. The kitten listens and allows the mouse to live. Then, the mouse reveals its true identity, that of Hotei, a God of Happiness, prosperity, and good luck. “I could have left you poor and lonely,” said the mouse, “but I presented you with a test to see if you were worth teaching.” Hotei’s reputation is of a year-round Santa Claus, traveling around the city with his sack, giving food and necessities to the poor and needy and doling out presents to those who deserve them.

With the spirit of Hototo and the teachings of Hotei combined, F.C.K. only hunts the bully k-9’s that prey upon the weak. He slays them, eats them, grows stronger, and now, takes their riches too. F.C.K. wears the bejeweled collars of the bully dogs he slays as a trophy. On other kills, he scalps the collar diamonds to adorn his scythe, as a warning. The k-9 clans killed families and took their fortunes for centuries. Remembering his teachings, the Fat Cat Killer gives the wealth from those he defeats to the members of his community...the same animals who have been left out of prosperity for generations.

If you want to find Fat Cat Killer and his Community, you will no longer find them in the streets of Harlem, but under the canopy of trees of Central Park. Both feared and loved, the scythe is both a symbol of warning, and one of hope.

